

Caleb Jasso is a Senior Policy Advisor at the Institute for Energy Research. In his role, Caleb assists with policy research and writing as well as digital media marketing & communications including social media and traditional outreach. Caleb graduated from Pepperdine University with a B.A. in history and a M.P.P. with specializations in international relations and national security and state and local policy.

Areas of expertise: International relations, geopolitics, and national security issues